

Handwritten text in a historical script, likely a manuscript or legal document. The text is written in a cursive style and covers the majority of the page. There are some marginal notes on the right side. The document appears to be a historical record or a legal proceeding, given the formal nature of the language and the presence of a large, blank, rectangular area at the bottom, which might be a placeholder for a signature or a seal.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a manuscript page. The text is written in a single column, filling most of the page. The script is dense and characteristic of the late 15th or early 16th century. The paper is aged and shows signs of wear, including a large tear at the bottom right corner and some staining. The text appears to be a continuous narrative or a list of items, with some lines starting with capital letters. The handwriting is somewhat irregular, suggesting it was written by hand.